

hero-image

Chichén-Itzá

Home. | Facts. | Gallery.

Mayan Ruins of Mexico

CHEE-CHIN EET-SA

The pre-Columbian ruins built by the Maya people of the Terminal Classic period.

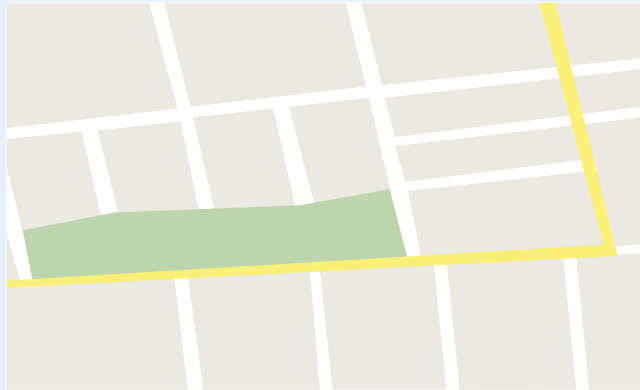

These ruins are highly popular with tourists from all around the world; they are steeped in classic and recognisable building styles and imagery, they are the source of many daytrips along with the 4 cenote (naturally formed sinkholes), and has been recognised as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Yucatán, Mexico

These ruins are built in the Eastern section of Yucatán state of Mexico.

The size of the site spans across 8 square kilometres, much of which has been excavated.

There are twelve main highlights at the ruins, including the Temple of the Feathered Serpent Kukulkan (El Castillo), the hall of the thousand columns, the temple of the warriors and the great Ballcourt.

Travel

Cancún and the Mayan Riviera are popular sites for travel in Mexico, being beach locales and their vast monuments and designs of the world and universe have been created by Maya and cultural attractions.

Chichén-Itzá is located about 120 miles west of Cancún;

Tourism

The site has been one of Mexico's most visited archeological landmarks and many people on holiday who stay in Cancún and other numerous hotels in the area.

These ruins have named a World heritage site since 1998. During its nearly 1 millennium history, numerous people have left their mark on the city; artistic and cultural attractions. Toltec people Chichén-Itzá's Temple of Kukulkan was voted a New wonder of the world since 2017 by a poll of 100million people by the "New Open World Corporation". This Pyramid has been the instant source of archeological visits and is still turning out new discoveries to this day.

Author

Author
image

Luke Munsch

Web Developer with experience in HTML and CSS
Front-End writing.